*Beginning with the 1985-86 season, the coaches' poll, sponsored by USA Today, began circulating weekly rankings. Every year, the final coaches' poll is voted after the NCAA championship game.

In 1993, USA Today joined with CNN to compile the poll. From 1998-2012, ESPN joined USA Today to compile the poll.

The current USA Today coaches' poll voting panel consists of 40 coaches representing a geographical mix of the nation and representing the nine districts of the Women's Basketball Coaches Association.

TOURNAMENT HISTORY

- 1982 The first NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship was conducted with a field of 32 teams, 13 of which were champions of automatic-qualifying conferences.
Women's Final Four: Norfolk, Virginia. Teams: Louisiana Tech, Cheyney, Maryland and Tennessee. Louisiana Tech (35-1) defeated Cheyney, 76-62, to claim the first NCAA women's basketball championship in front a crowd of 9,531 and a national television audience on CBS.
- 1983 The championship bracket remained at 32 teams and automatic qualification was awarded to 14 conferences. However, on a one-year basis only, an additional eight conferences played opening-round games to determine the four additional conference representatives that would compete in the first-round games.
Women's Final Four: Norfolk, Virginia. Teams: Southern California, Louisiana Tech, Georgia and Old Dominion. Southern California (31-2) defeated Louisiana Tech, 69-67, to win its first NCAA women's basketball championship.
- 1984 The championship format returned to the original format conducted in 1982, with a total of 17 automatic-qualifying conferences.
Women's Final Four: Los Angeles. Teams: Southern California, Tennessee, Cheyney and Louisiana Tech. Southern California (29-4) defeated Tennessee, 72-61, to win its second NCAA women's basketball championship.
- 1985 The bracket comprised 32 teams, with 17 automatic qualifiers. The Division I Women's Basketball Committee seeded teams No. 1 through 8 on a national basis, with No. 1 and 8 in one bracket, No. 2 and 7 in another, No. 3 and 6 in a third and No. 4 and 5 in the fourth. The remaining teams were seeded No. 1 through 8 within their respective regions; teams were moved outside their natural geographical region only as was necessary to balance the four regional brackets.
ESPN televised its first NCAA women's tournament games – the East Regional final in Norfolk, Virginia (Old Dominion 72, Ohio St. 68) the West Regional final in Los Angeles (Georgia 97, Long Beach State 82) and the national semifinals in Austin, Texas (Georgia 91, Western Kentucky 78 and Old Dominion 57, Louisiana-Monroe 47; the Old Dominion vs. Louisiana-Monroe game was shown on a tape-delayed basis).
Women's Final Four: Austin, Texas. Teams: Old Dominion, Georgia, Louisiana-Monroe and Western Kentucky. Old Dominion (31-3) defeated Georgia, 70-65, to win its first NCAA women's basketball championship.
- 1986 ESPN televised all four regional finals and the national semifinals, while CBS continued to broadcast the national championship game.
The NCAA and Host Communications teamed to form the NCAA Radio Network to produce radio broadcasts of the Women's Final Four games. The network consisted of 26 affiliates.
The championship was expanded to 40 teams and the number of automatic qualifiers increased from 17 to 18.
Women's Final Four: Lexington, Kentucky. Teams: Texas, Southern California, Tennessee and Western Kentucky. Undefeated Texas (34-0) beat Southern California, 97-81, to win its first NCAA women's basketball championship. Rupp Arena became the first facility to host the Men's and Women's Final Fours in consecutive years.
- 1987 The tournament remained at 40 teams, with 19 automatic qualifiers. The tournament consisted of four regional brackets of 10 teams each. The Women's Basketball Committee seeded No. 1 through 8 on a national basis and placed them in the four brackets accordingly. The remaining 32 teams were seeded within their geographical regions. A team could be moved outside its region if necessary to balance the bracket numerically, or if the proximity of an opponent outside its region would be comparable and a better competitive match-up would result.
Women's Final Four: Austin, Texas. Teams: Tennessee, Louisiana Tech, Long Beach State and Texas. Tennessee (28-6) defeated Louisiana Tech, 67-44, to win its first NCAA women's basketball championship. The Women's Final Four sold out for the first time with 15,615 in attendance for each session.
- 1988 The bracket remained at 40 teams, with 18 automatic qualifiers. The seeding policy was changed from seeding teams No. 1 through 8, to seeding two tiers of four teams each. Teams in the first tier were the No. 1-seeded teams in each of the four regions. Teams in the second tier were placed in the regional brackets to achieve competitive balance and, when possible, to preserve geographical identity.
Women's Final Four: Tacoma, Washington. Teams: Louisiana Tech, Auburn, Long Beach State and Tennessee. Louisiana Tech (32-2) defeated Auburn, 56-54, to win its second NCAA women's basketball championship.
- 1989 The championship bracket expanded from 40 to 48 teams with 19 automatic qualifiers.
Women's Final Four: Tacoma, Washington. Teams: Tennessee, Auburn, Louisiana Tech and Maryland. Tennessee (35-2) defeated Auburn, 76-60, to win its second NCAA women's basketball championship.
- 1990 The championship bracket remained at 48 teams, with 21 automatic qualifiers.
Women's Final Four: Knoxville, Tennessee. Teams: Stanford, Auburn, Louisiana Tech and Virginia. Stanford (32-1) defeated Auburn, 88-81, to win its first NCAA women's basketball championship in front of the first 20,000-plus-person crowd (20,023) in Women's Final Four history.
- 1991 The championship bracket remained at 48 teams, with 22 automatic qualifiers.

Women's Final Four: Los Angeles. Teams: Stanford, Western Kentucky, Missouri State and Virginia. Stanford (30-3) defeated Western Kentucky, 78-62, to win its second NCAA women's basketball championship.
- 1993 The championship bracket remained at 48 teams, with 23 automatic qualifiers.
Women's Final Four: Atlanta. Teams: Texas Tech, Ohio St., Iowa and Vanderbilt. Texas Tech (31-3) defeated Ohio St., 84-82, to win its first NCAA women's basketball championship. The Women's Final Four sold out for the second time with 16,141 in attendance for each session. It marked the first time the event was sold out in advance.
- 1994 The championship bracket was expanded from 48 to 64 teams, and all 32 eligible conferences were awarded automatic qualification. The Women's Basketball Committee seeded 16 teams nationally (i.e., four No. 1 seeds, four No. 2 seeds, four No. 3 seeds and four No. 4 seeds), and the remaining teams were placed in each regional bracket.
Women's Final Four: Richmond, Virginia. Teams: North Carolina, Louisiana Tech, Alabama and Purdue. North Carolina (33-2) hit a 3-pointer at the buzzer to defeat Louisiana Tech, 60-59, and win its first NCAA women's basketball championship. The Women's Final Four sold out for the third (second consecutive) time with 11,966 in attendance for each session.

Women's Final Four: Tampa, Florida. Teams: Baylor, Notre Dame, Oregon and UConn. Featuring its highest attendance in over 15 years, the 2019 NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship culminated April 7 at the Women's Final Four in Tampa with the Baylor Lady Bears hoisting the national championship trophy for the third time over that same time span.

Tampa hosted the 2019 NCAA Women's Final Four, marking the third time the city has welcomed women's basketball student-athletes and fans. The weekend, marked by sellout crowds for the semifinals and championship games, featured well-attended fan and community events and another year of millions in broadcast viewership.

Intended to enable more fans to attend games, the Women's Final Four games moved to a Friday-Sunday format in 2017, a shift from the previous Sunday-Tuesday format. The change has proven successful, resulting in a third-straight year of sellout crowds.

Both sessions – the semifinals Friday and the championship game Sunday – had sellout crowds in Amalie Arena with a total of 40,189. The championship game was attended by 20,127 people. Both attendance counts mark increases from the previous year. With this year's attendance count, Tampa has welcomed more fans in Women's Final Four history than any other city, with 123,039 fans now having attended the 2008, 2015 and 2019 Women's Final Four held at Amalie Arena.

In the first semifinal game April 5, Baylor defeated first-time Women's Final Four participant Oregon 72-67. Baylor guard Chloe Jackson made a tie-breaking layup with 39 seconds left in the fourth quarter, and Baylor sealed the win with free throws made by Kalani Brown and Lauren Cox. In the second semifinal game, Notre Dame claimed its second-straight trip to the national championship with another victory over UConn, though the Huskies had led by 1 point at half and later extended their lead to 9 points. Irish stars Brianna Turner and Arike Ogunbowale led a late surge, bringing the score within 1 point with 90 seconds left in the game, before securing the win at the free throw line, ultimately winning the game 81-76.

In the national championship game, Baylor led by as many as 17 points before Notre Dame rallied in the third quarter and tied the game in the fourth quarter. With 3.9 seconds left and the game tied at 80, Baylor guard and tournament Most Outstanding Player Jackson hit a crucial layup to put Baylor ahead, ultimately winning the game for the Lady Bears and giving Baylor its third national championship.

Overall, the 2019 Division I women's basketball tournament attracted 274,507 fans, an increase of approximately 22,000 from the previous year. This marks the highest combined total attendance since 2004 and ninth-highest combined attendance in tournament history. The four regional sites hosted a total of 64,723 fans, a 21% increase from the 2018 tournament.

The national championship game between Notre Dame and Baylor peaked at a 3.4 overnight rating and averaged a 2.2 overnight rating, up 11% from 2018. The championship averaged more than 3.6 million viewers and peaked at 5.6 million in the final minutes of the game.

The first semifinal Friday, featuring Baylor and Oregon, averaged 1.49 million viewers and the second semifinal, featuring Notre Dame and UConn, averaged 2.14 million based on overnight ratings.

Ratings in local broadcast markets soared. Hartford and New Haven averaged a 9.5 market rating for the semifinals and championship.

On social media, total impressions on NCAA social media accounts increased 40%, to 23.5 million. Social media viewership soared to 10.7 million across all platforms.

The 2019 championship marked ESPN's 16th consecutive year of televising all 63 games of the NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship and the 23rd year overall of exclusive coverage. All games were presented in high-definition television on ESPN HD and ESPN2 HD.

The NCAA Radio Network (Westwood One Sports Radio) reached a record 237 stations nationwide with the broadcast of the Women's Final Four, with the games also broadcast live by SiriusXM Satellite Radio.

2020 Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the championship was canceled before teams were selected to the tournament.

2021 The championship bracket remained at 64 teams, with 32 eligible conferences awarded automatic qualification.

Women's Final Four: San Antonio, Texas. Teams: Arizona, South Carolina, Stanford, and UConn.

After a year without the NCAA women's basketball tournament, the No. 1 overall seed Stanford Cardinal capped a championship like no other by hoisting its third national title and first since 1992 at the Alamodome in San Antonio on April 4, 2021.

In the national championship game, Stanford defeated No. 3 Arizona, 54-53, after prevailing 66-65 over South Carolina in the national semifinals. Stanford made history by becoming the first team in tournament history on both the men's and women's side to win the semifinal and final games by one point. Haley Jones won the Most Outstanding Player after a dominant performance, finishing with 17 points and eight rebounds against Arizona. Lexie Hull and Cameron Brink combined for 20 points for the Cardinal.

Arizona, playing in its first Women's Final Four, had advanced to the national championship game with a 69-59 win over UConn in the national semifinals.

The title capped a season in which Stanford played through much adversity due to the COVID-19 pandemic, that included not having the luxury of playing on its home court for long stretches of the regular season. It also capped a championship that was played entirely in the San Antonio region due to the pandemic, with six championship rounds featuring 63 games played using five venues and six courts in and around San Antonio that included the Alamodome, Bill Greehey Arena on the campus of St. Mary's (Texas) and the UTSA Convocation Center in San Antonio, Texas' Frank Erwin Center in Austin, Texas, and Strahan Arena on the campus of Texas State.

Hosting in one geographic region allowed for the championship to be held in a manageable geographic area that limited travel and allowed the NCAA to focus on the potential benefits of conducting certain safety measures in a controlled environment with competition and practice venues, medical resources and lodging for teams and officials all within close proximity.

Attendance for all rounds of the championship was severely limited, with a capacity of up to 17% from the Sweet Sixteen through the Women's Final Four. The decision to limit capacity while requiring masks and physical distancing was made in conjunction with local health authorities due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

The 2021 NCAA Division I Women's College Basketball Championship game between Stanford and Arizona averaged 4,077,000 viewers and is the most-viewed women's championship game since 2014.

The 2021 championship marked ESPN's 18th consecutive year of televising all 63 games of the NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship and the 26th year overall of exclusive coverage. All games were presented in high-definition television on ABC, ESPN and ESPN2.

2022 The championship bracket was expanded to 68 teams for the first time, with 32 eligible conferences awarded automatic qualification.

Women's Final Four: Minneapolis, Minnesota. Teams: Louisville, South Carolina, Stanford, and UConn.

In a year marked by expansion of the bracket to 68 teams, First Four games and use of the moniker "March Madness" for the women's championship, South Carolina was the best team during the regular season and championship, with the Gamecocks claiming their second team title at the Target Center in Minneapolis. In the national championship game, South Carolina defeated UConn in convincing fashion, 64-49.

National player of the year, South Carolina junior forward Aliyah Boston was named Most Outstanding Player of the 2022 Women's Final Four. After a 23-point, 18-rebound performance in the 72-59 national semifinal win against Louisville, Boston piled on an additional 11 points and 16 rebounds in the decisive championship game to help the Gamecocks take down UConn.

UConn, which suffered its first-ever loss in the national championship game after 11 straight wins in the big game, had advanced with a 63-58 win over defending national champion Stanford in the national semifinals.

Women's Final Four games at the Target Center were enjoyed by consecutive sellout crowds that totaled 36,572 on April 1 and 3. It culminated a well-attended championship that witnessed 317,456 fans attend games at 21 host sites (6,901 average). 2022 saw teams competing in the inaugural First Four. Games were held at Iowa State, LSU, NC State and South Carolina.

2023 The championship bracket included 68 teams, with 32 eligible conferences awarded automatic qualification.

Women's Final Four: Dallas, Texas. Teams: Iowa, LSU, South Carolina and Virginia Tech.

After six previous attempts, No. 3 seed LSU captured the 2023 NCAA national championship, its first in program history. The Tigers outlasted No. 2 Iowa to win 102-85 in the national championship game at American Airlines Center in Dallas. The Tigers became just the third No. 3 seeded team to win the title and the first since 1997.

Iowa, playing in its first Women's Final Four, had advanced to the title game with 77-73 national semifinal win over undefeated defending champion South Carolina, while LSU had defeated Virginia Tech, 79-72 to advance to the title game.

In winning the championship game, LSU beat the best offense in the country at their own game and put up the most points ever in a championship game. The 102nd point came on — none other than — their 11th and final 3-pointer of the game. Along with the most points in a title game, multiple records were shattered. LSU outscored Iowa 32-20 in the second quarter to lead 59-42 at the half. That is the most any team has scored in a Women's Final Four half since Georgia scored 57 in 1985.

Jasmine Carson topped the LSU in scoring with season-high 22 points including 7 of 8 shooting from the arc. Carson exploded after scoring just 13 points in the tournament leading up to the championship game. With a 15-point, 10-rebound performance, LSU's Angel Reese notched the most double-doubles (34) in a single season and was named the Women's Final Four Most Outstanding Player.

Iowa's Caitlin Clark scored a game-high 30 points in the national championship game, setting a record for points scored in a single NCAA tournament (191). This was two days after she scored 41 points in the win over South Carolina in the national semifinals.

A sellout crowd of 19,482 was in attendance for the national championship game at the American Airlines Center to cap off a tournament record of 357,542 fans that attended games throughout March Madness. First- and second-round attendance of 231,677 set a new tournament record, while the two-site regional format was a resounding success, with 85,275 fans attending in Greenville, South Carolina, and Seattle.

The championship marked ESPN's 20th consecutive year of televising all games of the NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship, which totaled 67 in 2023. It was the 28th year overall of exclusive coverage. All games were presented in high-definition television on ABC, ESPN and ESPN2.

ESPN's presentation of NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship scored double- to triple-digit increases during every stage of the 2022-23 season. The national championship game between LSU and Iowa drew 9.9 million viewers, making it the most-viewed women's college basketball game and ESPN platforms' most-viewed college basketball game (men's or women's) on record. The title game, which aired on ABC for the first time, spiked a remarkable 104 percent increase over last year's finale and was the most-viewed college event ever on ESPN+. The one-hour NCAA Women's Basketball Championship Special Presented by Capital One preceded the record-shattering showdown, averaging 1.7 million viewers.

The 2023 NCAA Women's Final Four in Dallas, Texas was ESPN's most-viewed Final Four weekend on record, averaging 6.5 million viewers. The three-game slate saw an 87 percent increase from 2022's event in Minneapolis.

The national semifinals averaged 4.5 million viewers, the most-viewed semifinal round on record on ESPN platforms. The Friday night doubleheader increased 68 percent versus 2022. The much-anticipated Iowa vs. South Carolina matchup attracted 5.6 million viewers, becoming ESPN's third most-viewed women's college basketball game on record, and drawing a 74 percent increase from 2022's late-night window. Eventual national champion LSU's game against Virginia Tech averaged 3.4 million viewers, ESPN's most-viewed early national semifinal on record, and an increase of 60 percent from the early window last year.

The Bird & Taurasi Show, one of multiple Women's Final Four MegaCast offerings, notched 742,000 viewers for Sunday's finale.

The 2023 championship across ESPN platforms averaged 983,000 viewers, up 55 percent over the 2022 tournament. Every round of the championship experienced viewership growth versus 2022, including double-digit increases for the first and second Rounds, the Sweet 16 and the Elite Eight. Viewers also consumed a record 7.4 billion minutes of women's college basketball content throughout the entire championship. Sponsors and advertisers came out in full force as well, with Disney Advertising selling out in-game sponsorship opportunities for the championship for the second year in a row with even more advertisers joining in 2023. In total, 15 sponsors and nearly 100 advertisers activated during the 2023 championship, up from 14 and 22, respectively, a year ago.

PRE-NCAA STATISTICAL LEADERS

The following women played all or most of their collegiate careers before the era of official NCAA women's basketball statistics, which began in 1981-82. Before becoming members of the NCAA in 1981-82, most women's programs were under the auspices of the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women.

The NCAA would like to thank the University of Maryland libraries for their assistance in sharing the AIAW Archive information:

"AIAW Archives, Special Collections, University of Maryland Libraries."

If you have information that can be used in expanding/completing any portion of this section, please send supporting documents to Rick Nixon at nixon@ncaa.org.
